

Collaborative problem solving is a key element of the conflict resolution toolbox that can be applied to every area of your life.

Communities and regions throughout Saskatchewan are looking towards collaborative approaches to many of the issues that affect them.

As a development practitioner, municipal official or community leader, you are often faced with bridging what appears to be 'competing' or 'conflicting' interests.

Acquire basic knowledge and skillsets that will enable you to:

- improve communication
- build stronger relationships
- promote fewer misunderstandings
- make effective decisions in collaboration with others
- improve organizational or community morale
- reduce confrontations
- increase productivity

This one day workshop provides foundational skills in conflict resolution that participants can leave with and immediately implement in their personal and professional lives.

This one day workshop is available for communities or organizations and is offered at a flat fee rate of $2000.00 per session

Interested communities or organizations please contact the Saskatchewan Economic Development Association office at 306-384-5817 or by email at seda@seda.sk.ca

Collaborative Problem Solving Training

Delivered by:
Saskatchewan Justice

A workshop for community leaders,
officials,
& development
practitioners

Acquire essential skills that will enable you to work together with others to build provincial community.

As individuals are adequately equipped and empowered with tools to positively manage differences, they are able to appreciate diversity in their day to day lives.

Take advantage of this opportunity to learn effective techniques to better express and understand the interests of yourself, your community or your project—as well as those of potential collaborators.

The Collaborative Problem Solving Toolbox:

- Discover how to best present your interests for constructive discussion.
- Learn how to identify the interests of others and utilize those interests in effective problem solving.
- Apply active listening techniques and effective questioning skills.
- Learn how to utilize the relationships between Satisfaction and Conflict Resolution.

Workshop Delivery:

The mission of the Dispute Resolution Office of Saskatchewan Justice is to enhance understanding and accessibility of collaborative problem solving and decision making.

The Dispute Resolution Office provides professional mediation and facilitation services as well as technical expertise and assistance to public sector organizations. It provides training, communications, conflict resolution and mediation to public sector organizations and supports the development of restorative justice initiatives.

As an independent, non-governmental organization, the Saskatchewan Economic Development Association (SEDA) contributes to the province of Saskatchewan through development and delivery of a number of well-established programs and services.

SEDA is dedicated to enhancing provincial economic growth through the following service pillars:

- Facilitation of Networks & Information Sharing Services
- Communications & Collaboration
- Development & Delivery of Educational Programs
- Research, Development & Project Management
